Headline:
Largely dry, mostly cloudy today, and mild still. Colder Sunday.

Today:
Generally cloudy, mild and breezy, but some sunny spells are possible. Staying mainly dry, apart for the chance of a little drizzle at times, especially over the Peak District, although here rain is likely to arrive late afternoon. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloudy this evening with outbreaks of rain spreading southeast. After midnight dry and clear conditions will follow. Becoming chilly, especially in rural areas where temperatures will fall close to freezing. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Sunday:
Cold and sunny start before cloud increases and scattered, sometimes heavy, showers arrive through the morning. Later showers ease. Highest temperatures Lincolnshire coast, but feeling noticeably colder everywhere. Brisk winds. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Largely dry, often cloudy, but some breaks allowing clear or sunny spells. Cold for Monday, then temperatures rising closer to average. Chance of patchy rain spreading southeast later Wednesday.
